Single Person Earning $600 Would Pay $14; Exemptions To Be Lowered

WASHINGTON, May 21—The House ways and means committee today began consideration of a treasury proposal calling for the payment of individual income taxes in monthly installments as the income is being earned.

Randolph Paul, treasury tax expert, submitted a proposal which would give the treasury discretionary power to collect from one to 10 percent of a person's estimated tax bill each month. At present, income taxes are not collected until three months after the year in which an individual earned the income has ended.

The new method of collection is desired by the treasury as an anti-inflationary proposal, in that the public would no longer pay taxes for one year out of the next year's earnings, and purchasing power would therefore be cut down.

Previous proposals have been made for an "at the source tax" whereby the income levies would be taken out of a person's pay check before he receives it.

The committee made public personal income tax rates which would start at 18 percent of taxable incomes—after all deductions—and graduate to 87 percent on incomes of $200,000 and over. The new normal tax would be six percent and surtaxes would range from 12 to 81 percent. At present, taxes begin at 10 percent and (Continued on Page Three)

BREWSTER FIRM GOES TO WORK ON CONTRACTS

NEW YORK, May 21—Returned to private management by executive order of President Roosevelt, three plants of the Brewster Aeronautical company today rushed work on contracts for millions of dollars worth of combat planes.

Taken over by the government on April 18, the plants were returned to private ownership following installation of new officers and directors, headed by C. A. Van Dusen as president.

Dissatisfaction with "existing private control" was given by the Navy as the reason for government intrusion into the affairs of the company, which operates plants in Long Island City, New York, N. J. and Johnsville, Pa.

"The company has not proved adequate under the circumstances confronting it effectively to operate the corporation's plants so as to assure essential deliveries," a statement issued at that time said.

CANNING SUGAR RULINGS MADE BY GOVERNMENT

New canning sugar regulations were announced Thursday by the local rationing board. In a government decree of May 20 persons will be allowed one pound of sugar for each four quarts of fruit that they expect to can. Sugar for jams, jellies, preserves and butters will be in the proportion of one pound per person for a season. This recent ruling replaces the previous plan of allotting only five pounds a person a year.

To obtain this extra sugar canners must appear before their ration board and receive certificates for the purchases. At this time those asking for the quota will have to have their War Ration book with them and be prepared to answer questions as to amount of fruit they canned last year and how much fruit they have on hand now.

Persons in the county area who wish their supply of sugar now for packing strawberries can obtain their certificates from the rural boards Friday, May 22. The Circleville board will begin issuing the permits next week.

Volume Of Business Will Be Doubled As Soon As Capacity Is Reached

DETROIT, May 21—First huge four-motored bomber built by the Ford Motor company at its vast Willow Run plant has just come off the assembly lines.

Stressing the significance of the start of mass production on this engine of destruction to be hurled by the United Nations at the axis powers, Ford officials declared today that the company has embarked on an arms production program that probably will run over $2,000,000,000 a year at its peak.

This will be about double the volume of its peacetime automobile business. Edsel Ford, president of the company, said the company's peacetime employment also would be more than doubled.

Production by the company of the big four-engine bombers alone, he said, will compare favorably with the total automobile business in normal times.

Ford addressed his remarks to a group of newspapermen making a tour of war plants conducted by the National Association of Manufacturers. The Willow Run plant, where the bombers and parts for bombers are now in mass production, was among the points visited by the newsmen on their tour.

The dispatch said: "A telegram from Algiers to Vichy states that an aircraft carrier escorted by two cruisers entered Gibraltar roadstead last night followed by a steamer carrying 5,000 American troops whose destination is unknown."

(There was no confirmation in responsible quarters of the Vichy information and Washington had no comment concerning American troops.)

MEXICO CITY, May 21—President Manuel Avila Camacho today summoned the Mexican cabinet for a special meeting to consider a declaration of war against the axis.

Summoned also to the conference, scheduled for Friday, was General Lazaro Cardenas, former president who is now chief of the Pacific coast military zone with headquarters at Mazatlan.

Avila Camacho's call to the cabinet and General Cardenas followed lengthy conferences with Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, Mexico's ambassador to the United States, and Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla.

The foreign minister brought with him a draft of a formal declaration of war against Germany, Italy and Japan which had been drawn up by leaders of the Mexican senate after the tanker Portero Del Llano was sunk by an axis submarine.

Dispatch of an ultimatum to the axis capitals by Padilla demanding indemnity for the loss of the vessel so far has gone without answer. The foreign minister's not set midnight tonight as the deadline for a reply.

CHICAGO, May 21—Private Milton Temkin of Chicago, home on a furlough from Australia, brought back word today that American troops are fed so much by the Australians, in addition to the regular army fare, that they have to keep exercising to keep their weight down.

"The Australians are wonderful people," he said. "They really have thrown open their homes to us. All you have to say is 'American' or 'Yank' and you get a big meal. FUEL RATIONING PLAN ASSAILED

Might As Well Limit Corn In Iowa As Gas In Texas, Rep. Rankin Claims

WASHINGTON, May 21—Rep. Rankin (D) Miss., today attacked plans for a nationwide gasoline rationing as the first rumblings of an approaching storm of protest from the oil producing southwest were heard in the capital.

"If they ration gas in Mississippi and Texas, they might as well ration corn in Iowa or coal in Pennsylvania," Rankin declared as officials worked toward national gas rationing.

"I don't see any reason for rationing gas down there where we have a super-abundance of it," Rankin said he did not think the idea of rationing gas in the oil producing area to save rubber was being well-faken.

Meantime, price administration officials, troubled already by the east coast problem, have remained "neutral" in the current discussions, ready to spread the program from coast to coast if the WPB gives the order. It was indicated that whatever permanent plan is adopted in the East July 1 will become the pattern for the nation.

Equipment, Believed Designed For Spring Offensive, Smashed To Bits, Seared By Flames In Fight Around Kharkov

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE
Nazi reserve forces thrown into battle on the Kharkov front in a futile effort to slow down the steady advance of Russia's armies were repulsed with enormous losses today while United Nations fliers resumed heavy attacks against Jap-held bases north of Australia.

Scores of new German tanks which Hitler had expected to employ in a Spring offensive in Russia were smashed to bits or seared by flames when the Soviets met the Nazi counter-blows with fierce artillery fire. Other German tanks were crushed by blows from Stormovik bombers carrying armor-piercing cannon and by fuel bottles which explode and burst into flame when hurled at the enemy.

The counter-offensive by the Germans in the Izyum-Barvenkovo sector, 70 miles southeast of Kharkov, was beaten back, according to the Russians.

Along the entire front the general character of the fighting has changed. Soviet troops have now advanced well beyond the smashed German defense lines and the hostilities now have proceeded from the initial stage of battering fortifications to combat in open fields and unprotected populated points.

As a result of huge mechanized losses, the Germans have now ceased their massed tank charges and counter-attacks, and these are now being carried out by infantry units of varying strength.

German war planes are in action only on one sector of the front where tanks also are still operating and the outcome is not yet clear.

Several enemy units are hanging on to strongly fortified junctions but are completely surrounded and no longer have any hope either of breaking out or receiving reinforcements.

Might Not Continue
(In London the Daily Express commented that the tank battles are being fought on such a scale that it will be impossible for them to continue much longer.)

"At the present rate of destruction," the newspaper said, "the tank part of the battle may be broken off indecisively."

Timoshenko's attacks north of Taganrog, strategic sea of Azov port in the southern Ukraine, appeared to be growing in force.

At the same time heavy fighting continued on the Kerch peninsula and the Communist newspaper Pravda announced that "greater" battles were about to begin in the Kerch area over which the Germans claim to have gained control.

(The German radio announced that heavy Russian attacks were taking place near Taganrog. It also was admitted that the Soviets still are fighting near the port of Kerch in eastern Crimea and that a large number of Russians is holding out in the Yenikale fortress.)

Fierce battles continued in progress on the Leningrad front far to the north where the Germans were said to be pouring in reserves to meet the tank, artillery and airplane offensive begun in that sector by the Russians.

Five Transports Hit
The Soviet northern fleet meanwhile was credited with sinking five large German transports during the last few days.

'MOTHER' CLARK, FORMER COACH IN CITY, DEAD

Funeral services will be conducted in Delaware Friday at 2:30 p. m. for David B. (Mother) Clark, 61, former Circleville high school principal and coach of athletics, who died after a heart attack Wednesday in Kings Mills, where he had been serving as superintendent of schools.

Mr. Clark was coach of some of Circleville's most successful football teams in the period preceding the first World War. He left Circleville to accept teaching work in Kenton and went from that city to the Marsh Foundation school at Van Wert where he remained until 1937. He accepted the Kings Mills superintendency in that year.

He was a graduate of Ohio State university and had held school positions in Fostoria and Milford in addition to other cities named.

Survivors include his widow, Anna Clingan Clark; a son, Francis of Dayton, who was born in Circleville, and two daughters, the Misses Helen and Mary of Cincinnati.

Mr. Clark was a native of Dunlap, Hamilton county. The body was to lie in state today at the Johnson funeral home at Lebanon from 2 to 10 p. m. The services at Delaware tomorrow will be private.

Clark had recently resigned as superintendent of the Kings Mills schools but no successor had been named.

CARGO PLANES AS FREIGHTERS SEEN IN FUTURE

NEW YORK, May 21—Cargo planes, which span the oceans at 250 miles an hour, are soon going to replace freight and passenger ships, Grover Loening, designer of a two-seater fighting plane, maintained today.

Pointing out that the transportation renaissance would come immediately after the war—and sooner if the war lasted many years—Loening said speed was responsible for the coming change.

Loening explained that a B-19 bomber could carry a useful load of 20 tons—as much as a freight car—and by 1943 if 40,000 of the B-19 bombers were in use they could easily replace all the surface ships of the United Nations which now run with an aggregate cargo capacity of 20,000,000 tons.

At the same time heavy fighting continued on the Kerch peninsula and the Communist newspaper Pravda announced that "greater" battles were about to begin in the Kerch area over which the Germans claim to have gained control.

(The German radio announced that heavy Russian attacks were taking place near Taganrog. It also was admitted that the Soviets still are fighting near the port of Kerch in eastern Crimea and that a large number of Russians is holding out in the Yenikale fortress.)

Fierce battles continued in progress on the Leningrad front far to the north where the Germans were said to be pouring in reserves to meet the tank, artillery and airplane offensive begun in that sector by the Russians.

Five Transports Hit

The Soviet northern fleet meanwhile was credited with sinking five large German transports during the last few days.

HARRY B. WELCH FILES PETITION FOR ASSEMBLY

Harry B. Welch, Democratic candidate for representative in the general assembly, filed his petition Thursday with the Pickaway county board of elections. 'MOTHER' CLARK, FORMER COACH IN CITY, DEAD

Funeral services will be conducted in Delaware Friday at 2:30 p. m. for David B. (Mother) Clark, 61, former Circleville high school principal and coach of athletics, who died after a heart attack Wednesday in Kings Mills, where he had been serving as superintendent of schools.

Mr. Clark was coach of some of Circleville's most successful football teams in the period preceding the first World War.

He left Circleville to accept teaching work in Kenton and went from that city to the Marsh Foundation school at Van Wert where he remained until 1937. He accepted the Kings Mills superintendency in that year.

He was a graduate of Ohio State university and had held school positions in Fostoria and Milford in addition to other cities named.

Survivors include his widow, Anna Clingan Clark; a son, Francis of Dayton, who was born in Circleville, and two daughters, the Misses Helen and Mary of Cincinnati.

Mr. Clark was a native of Dunlap, Hamilton county.

The body was to lie in state today at the Johnson funeral home at Lebanon from 2 to 10 p. m. The services at Delaware tomorrow will be private.

Clark had recently resigned as superintendent of the Kings Mills schools but no successor had been named.

CARGO PLANES AS FREIGHTERS SEEN IN FUTURE

NEW YORK, May 21—Cargo planes, which span the oceans at 250 miles an hour, are soon going to replace freight and passenger ships, Grover Loening, designer of a two-seater fighting plane, maintained today.

Pointing out that the transportation renaissance would come immediately after the war—and sooner if the war lasted many years —Loening said speed was responsible for the coming change.

Loening explained that a B-19 bomber could carry a useful load of 20 tons—as much as a freight car—and by 1943 if 40,000 of the B-19 bombers were in use they could easily replace all the surface ships of the United Nations which now run with an aggregate cargo capacity of 20,000,000 tons.

BROTHERS GONE TO ARMY, SO SMITHY'S JOB TAKEN BY GIRL

To "Punish" Dutch

Margaret Good Works With Her Father in Blacksmith Shop

By Paul Turner

With the war program getting well under way we hear talk not only of sugar restrictions, tire rationing, gasoline rationing and the others, but also of the shortage of workers in many of the nation's war plants and the suggestion that it may become necessary to conscript women to replace men who must do actual fighting.

Already in many of the larger cities female workers have formed corps that are taking over many departments in war production. Here's one incident that you don't have to go far to see.

With two sons in the armed forces, R. D. Good, who operates one of few blacksmith shops in this county, has felt the pinch from the labor shortage, so his daughter, Margaret, age 20, has begun her training as a helper in the shop. Two of her brothers, Medford and Millard, are in the nation's armed forces and a third, Marion, is a patient in Mt. Vernon sanitarium, so the daughter has decided that the sign over the shop, on East Franklin street, will some day soon be changed to read R. D. Good and Daughter.

The young girl can be found in her overalls working with her father any day of the week. She does her 28 by 30 work clothes each morning and at present has taken quite an interest in working on lawnmowers, a repair business that is quite active due to recent restrictions on manufacturing of this item.

Interest In All Work

However, Margaret does take an interest in all the other work done by her father and by helping him now she hopes to know all the ropes of the job someday. Unusual as it may seem Miss Good states that it's fun to get dirty and greasy because then you can see the value of work done by soap.

War times bring about many unusual happenings and here's one that deserves to go down in the books with the rest of them, for, ask anyone who knows, blacksmithing is a man's job.

51,908 OF OHIO BOYS AND GIRLS JOIN 4-H CLUBS

Final reports on 4-H club work for Ohio in 1941 show that the total membership was 51,908, with 18,646 boys and 33,262 girls enrolled. This was a slight decrease from the 1940 enrollment, due to an increased tempo of farm work, chances to work for good pay in industrial work, and less opportunity of extension agents to organize clubs.

The counties with the highest enrollments were Muskingum 1-138, Scioto 1,113 and Fairfield 1-055. All counties except Vinton had organized clubs last year. The percentage of club members who completed their projects was 81.3.

Only 11.8 percent of all Ohio rural youth in the 10-20 age group were club members. The counties with the highest percentage of eligible youth enrolled were Union, Williams, Hocking, Wyandot, Highland, Knox, and Huron, all with more than 20 percent of the eligible youth in clubs.

Almost 60 percent of all club members each year have belonged to clubs previously. The average length of time spent in club work per member has been approximately 2.5 years for the past 10 years. Henry, Union, Fairfield, and Carroll county 1941 club members had in club work an average of three years or more.

Not all club members live on farms. The state club leaders at Ohio State university report that 33 percent of all 1941 members lived in towns. Wayne county, with 95 percent of all members living on farms, leads the state in that regard, while only 29 percent of Cuyahoga county club members were farm residents.

LIBRARY BOARD T O INVESTIGATE NOON'S ACTIONS

COLUMBUS, May 21 — Efforts to oust Paul A. T. Noon as state librarian, a post he has held for nine years reached a showdown today. The state library board was to meet this afternoon to hear "evidence on both sides."

Noon, a Democrat, was appointed by former Gov. George White in 1933, but his position is subordinate to the state director of education, Kenneth C. Ray, a Republican appointee.

The charge that Noon's travel expenses were excessive led him to submit his resignation from the $5,000-a-year post recently, but the state library board has taken no action on it.

Noon asserted that he has no apologies for his administration, and a member of the library board revealed that scores of letters have been received from libraries throughout the state, objecting to Noon's replacement.

The same member said that he and three other members who with Director Ray comprise the board, called today's meeting to get the facts in the ouster action. He indicated that whether Noon's resignation is accepted or rejected will depend upon the outcome of this meeting.

Besides Ray, board members are Joseph E. Hurst, New Philadelphia; Rowland Peters, Bucyrus; Mrs. Kathryn Blosser, Chillicothe, and Miss Nellie Dunlap, Hillsboro.

Read Why You'll Find Low Ceiling Prices at A & P!
FIRST—WHAT IS A CEILING PRICE? A store's ceiling price on any item covered by the regulation is the HIGHEST PRICE charged by that particular store for that item DURING MARCH, 1942.
SECOND—WHY CEILING PRICES ARE NOT THE SAME IN ALL STORES. The regulations clearly state that EACH STORE MUST ESTABLISH ITS OWN PRICE CEILINGS. As example, if store X charges 17c for Jones Brand Tomatoes in March and store Y 15c for the same article, during March, then X can charge no higher than 17c—and Y no higher than 15c.
WHY A & P CEILING PRICES ARE LOW. Because every A & P price has been a very low price month after month, our ceiling prices are naturally very low. For years we've waged war on needless waste in distributing foods—cut out unnecessary expense — eliminated frills. And the savings made have been shared with our customers by giving them low prices. The new ceiling price regulations will not alter in any way our policy of bringing you the finest foods the markets afford at our lowest possible prices. Come in today. Save!

in, president of the Moscow Soviet, that they prepare for a possible gas attack at any moment.

Berlin's version of the battle situation, of course, differed in every detail. Strong Russian attacks were "frustrated," it was alleged and many Soviet tanks destroyed.

Stockholm dispatches today said Russian troops have occupied positions astride the strategic railroad between Kharkov and Loozava.

The Germans had been using this line as a vital communication link to supply field Marshal Fedor Von Bock's southern Crimean armies.

The German-controlled Paris radio said intense fighting is under way along the Murmansk railroad on the northern Russian front. Finnish troops were said to be threatening to cut off Soviet forces on the Kola peninsula.

Another Timor Raid

United nations activities in the Australia sector were concerned chiefly with a raid on the island of Timor, where two Japanese planes were destroyed, the air-drome runway blasted and large fires set in military buildings. Both Kupang on the southwest coast and Dilli in the north were attacked.

Japanese planes again raided Port Moresby on the island of New Guinea but it was a costly attack, the enemy suffering damage to four of the 12 navy zero planes sent over.

An official military spokesman at Chungking disclosed that the Japanese are now using 50,000 men in the Chekiang province military operations designed to drive China out of the war. Of this number, 40,000 are being used in front-line operations.

The situation in Yunnan province has been stabilized, the spokesman said, the Chinese having found it easy to deal with Japanese units after the initial impetus of their northward drive had been stemmed.

RIGID LIMITS PLACED ON SOLDIERS' PACKAGES

A. Hulse Hays, Circleville postmaster, issued information Thursday on new regulations the government has placed on packages sent to men in service outside the United States, Canada and Mexico.

A new ruling sets the weight limit at 11 pounds and the size limit at 18 inches long or 42 inches length and girth combined. The local office has been notified not to accept perishable packages and those that are not securely wrapped for much handling. It has been suggested that persons wishing to send parcel post to boys in the service abroad should place the completely wrapped container in another outside package for safety.

Rigid restrictions will be followed from now on in respect to the proper wrapping of these parcels, according to the local office.

The services of the Red Cross "will be rendered promptly and efficiently by trained, experienced personnel, backed by all the chapter's resources of equipment and supplies," he added.

ADOLF THINKS HE'S INSPIRATION

graduate to 81 percent on incomes of $5,000,000 or over.

New Rates Prepared

Under the new rates, assuming that no deductions other than allowed exemptions were taken—a single person earning $600 a year would pay a tax of $14, while a married couple, with no dependents and an income of $1,300 would pay $12. Last year, neither would have had to pay any tax.

The new rates, coupled with lower exemptions, are estimated to yield $2,750,000,000 additional revenues from personal income taxes. This contrasts with $4,300,000,000 which had been called for by the administration.

Only $1,550,000,000 of the personal income tax total will be derived from the higher tax rates, it is estimated. The balance, according to tax experts, will be derived from lowering exemptions for single persons from $750 to $500 and married couples from $1,500 to $1,200.

Thus far, including higher corporation tax rates, the committee has acted to raise $5,250,000,000 in war taxes, as against $8,700,000,000 which has been requested by the treasury.

Still to be worked out in committee are excise tax rates, and other minor revenue raising matters.

DETROIT READY TO FIGHT
GASOLINE RATION PLAN

DETROIT, May 21—Detroit city officials mapped plans today to fight any gas rationing program which would affect the motor city.

Gas rationing in Detroit, officials believed, would affect the operation of war industries.

Samuel T. Gilbert, president of the Detroit Street Railway commission, commented: "Detroit is different from New York, Chicago and Philadelphia because we have no rapid transit system. The wheels of industry will be slowed if they put the rationing into effect as it is in the East."

Gilbert said he would head a Detroit delegation which would visit Washington to explain to government officials just how gas rationing would affect the city.

self. A striking feature of the Ford bomber program is the extent to which mass production methods are being employed in making parts for the bombers and assembling them.

For the first time, Ford officials said, airplanes now are being built in sections that fit together as do the interchangeable part of an automobile.

Ford revealed that a vast volume of weapons and materials is beginning to flow, not only from the Ford plants that were making Ford automobiles a few months ago, but from an old plant in which the model T Ford was made.

The company, Ford said, now has a total employment that is considerably above the peacetime figure. However, it is not yet turning out war goods up to the level of the automobile business volume, and will not reach this level for some weeks.

T Plant In Assembly

The old Model T plant, Ford explained, is being used as an assembly plant for tanks. Fire control devices also are being produced in a Ford plant which was abandoned years ago and in recent years has been leased to various manufacturers.

Ford said the company would roll its own armor plate for tanks and produce its own engines. The company, he revealed, has developed a special V-8 tank engine.

The company has undertaken about 14 projects for the nation's armed forces, Ford said. These include bombers, tanks, aircraft engines, jeeps, armored cars and fire control apparatus.

DESPITE JAPS

NEW YORK, May 21—Defying Japanese armies of occupation, priests, who have nothing more than the arching trees of the jungle for a cathedral, are still holding mass on the island of Mindanao.

Father Pacifico Ortiz, 28-year-old Jesuit, who served as a chaplain with the Philippine army and escaped to this country with President Manuel Quezon in an American torpedo boat, made the disclosure today.

"It's my opinion that the Japanese are not sure of victory, therefore they will not treat prisoners badly," Father Ortiz, here on furlough, commented.

"I don't think they will persecute the church now," he continued. "They may later, but it's good propaganda not to do so now. When the Japanese army of occupation came, they brought their own Catholic priests."

Father Ortiz was enthusiastic in his praise of the American defenders.

"The anti-aircraft crews were marvelous, especially the 60th Coast Artillery. They set a world's record shooting down planes at 20,000 feet, and they shot down more than I could count," he revealed.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! ADOLF THINKS HE'S INSPIRATION graduate to 81 percent on incomes of $5,000,000 or over.

New Rates Prepared

Under the new rates, assuming that no deductions other than allowed exemptions were taken—a single person earning $600 a year would pay a tax of $14, while a married couple, with no dependents and an income of $1,300 would pay $12. Last year, neither would have had to pay any tax.

The new rates, coupled with lower exemptions, are estimated to yield $2,750,000,000 additional revenues from personal income taxes. This contrasts with $4,300,000,000 which had been called for by the administration.

Only $1,550,000,000 of the personal income tax total will be derived from the higher tax rates, it is estimated. The balance, according to tax experts, will be derived from lowering exemptions for single persons from $750 to $500 and married couples from $1,500 to $1,200.

Thus far, including higher corporation tax rates, the committee has acted to raise $5,250,000,000 in war taxes, as against $8,700,000,000 which has been requested by the treasury.

Still to be worked out in committee are excise tax rates, and other minor revenue raising matters.

DETROIT READY TO FIGHT GASOLINE RATION PLAN

DETROIT, May 21—Detroit city officials mapped plans today to fight any gas rationing program which would affect the motor city.

Gas rationing in Detroit, officials believed, would affect the operation of war industries.

Samuel T. Gilbert, president of the Detroit Street Railway commission, commented: "Detroit is connected with New York, Chicago and Philadelphia because we have no rapid transit system. The wheels of industry will be slowed if they put the rationing into effect as it is in the East."

Gilbert said he would head a Detroit delegation which would visit Washington to explain to government officials just how gas rationing would affect the city.

self. A striking feature of the Ford bomber program is the extent to which mass production methods are being employed in making parts for the bombers and assembling them.

For the first time, Ford officials said, airplanes now are being built in sections that fit together as do the interchangeable parts of an automobile.

Ford revealed that a vast volume of weapons and materials is beginning to flow, not only from the Ford plants that were making Ford automobiles a few months ago, but from an old plant in which the model T Ford was made.

The company, Ford said, now has a total employment that is considerably above the peacetime figure. However, it is not yet turning out war goods up to the level of the automobile business volume, and will not reach this level for some weeks.

T Plant In Assembly

The old Model T plant, Ford explained, is being used as an assembly plant for tanks. Fire control devices also are being produced in a Ford plant which was abandoned years ago and in recent years has been leased to various manufacturers.

Ford said the company would roll its own armor plate for tanks and produce its own engines. The company, he revealed, has developed a special V-8 tank engine.

The company has undertaken about 14 projects for the nation's armed forces, Ford said. These include bombers, tanks, aircraft engines, jeeps, armored cars and fire control apparatus.

PRIESTS STILL CONDUCT RITES DESPITE JAPS

NEW YORK, May 21—Defying Japanese armies of occupation, priests, who have nothing more than the arching trees of the jungle for a cathedral, are still holding mass on the island of Mindanao.

Father Pacifico Ortiz, 28-year-old Jesuit, who served as a chaplain with the Philippine army and escaped to this country with President Manuel Quezon in an American torpedo boat, made the disclosure today.

"It's my opinion that the Japanese are not sure of victory, therefore they will not treat prisoners badly," Father Ortiz, here on furlough, commented.

"I don't think they will persecute the church now," he continued. "They may later, but it's good propaganda not to do so now. When the Japanese army of occupation came, they brought their own Catholic priests."

Father Ortiz was enthusiastic in his praise of the American defenders.

"The anti-aircraft crews were marvelous, especially the 60th Coast Artillery. They set a world's record shooting down planes at 20,000 feet, and they shot down more than I could count," he revealed.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often
Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 1 1/2 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. WALSH CLEARED AS SOLONS HIT 'SMEAR' PLANS

FBI Says Charges Against Senator For Visiting 'Spy' House Untrue

Clark Claims Integrity Of Organization At Stake In Heated Address

WASHINGTON, May 21 — Demands for sweeping investigation into charges of a conspiracy to "smear" Congress, especially senators who opposed the administration's pre-war foreign policy, were pressed in the Senate today in the wake of exposure by the FBI of false charges against Sen. David I. Walsh (D. Mass.).

Sen. Bennett Clark (D. Mo.), declaring that integrity of the Senate is at stake, indicated that he will propose a resolution for an investigation.

Clark's plan is to bring those involved in the Walsh case before the bar of the Senate, if investigation warrants, for trial on charges of contempt of the Senate. Contempt can be punished by jail sentences.

While Democratic Senate Leader Alben Barkley weighed further action in the Walsh case, he said he opposed a general inquiry to determine whether a conspiracy exists against members of Congress.

Barkley electrified the Senate yesterday when he presented an FBI report branding as false charges printed in the New York Post that Sen. Walsh had visited a house of degradation in Brooklyn frequented by suspected Nazi spies.

Sen. McCarran (D. Nev.), Sen. Nye (R. N. D.), and other senators joined in the demand for an investigation.

Diabolical, Murderous
"I think the evidence indicates a pre-conceived, diabolical, murderous thing was planned as a part of a program to assail the reputation and good name of innocent members of Congress—especially senators who have had the courage to express and vote their own conscientious judgment," said McCarran.

"I think the whole conspiracy should be immediately attacked by the Department of Justice and the Senate and the conspirators brought to light of scrutiny to the end that such a conspiracy will have no place in our nation."

"This attack on Sen. Walsh was an affront to the dignity of the Senate," said Sen. Clark. "It appears to be a conspiracy and we should know who was engaged in it."

"The time has come when Congress ought not to stand for a deliberate frame-up."

Clark said he understood that he had been accused of saying things about the New York Post under cloak of congressional immunity which he would not say if subject to a law suit.

"I'd be willing to walk out on the steps of the capitol and say the things I said in the Senate and I'd be glad if they took action," Clark stated.

Regret Not Voiced
Sen. Barkley expressed disappointment that those named in the Walsh case had not come out and expressed regret after he announced findings of the Justice department.

"I thought the Post should be broad-minded enough to say that they did Walsh an injustice but evidently they are not that big," said Barkley.

Barkley added that he saw nothing in the FBI report to indicate that there was a conspiracy against Walsh.

U. S. TREASURY PRAISES N. & W. FOR BOND SALE

Norfolk and Western employees are the first large group of rail workers in the United States—in the 20,000 or more employee classification—to achieve the distinction of having the high rating of 98.16 percent of their number purchase or subscribe to War Savings Bonds.

This fact was revealed in a letter from the U. S. Treasury department received by L. C. Ayers, of Roanoke, Va., N. & W. assistant general manager and general chairman of the railway's system-wide War Savings Bond campaign. A member of the War Savings staff of the Treasury department wrote:

"May I offer you congratulations on the good job of work you and your committee have done among the employees of your railroad. Your railroad is the first in the country, having more than 20,000 employees, to make this enviable record. You have every reason to be proud of the record you have established, and we of the Treasury department greatly appreciate your cooperation in this matter."

During the N. & W. employees' special War Savings Bond campaign—April 15-May 5—21,818 employees of the railway, or 98.16 percent of the total, purchased or subscribed to bonds having a maturity value of $2,457,475.00. Chairman Ayers said today that additional subscriptions which have been received will boost the railway employees participation to 99 percent.

U. S. TREASURY PRAISES N. & W. FOR BOND SALE

Norfolk and Western employees are the first large group of rail workers in the United States—in the 20,000 or more employee classification—to achieve the distinction of having the high rating of 98.16 percent of their number purchase or subscribe to War Savings Bonds.

This fact was revealed in a letter from the U. S. Treasury department received by L. C. Ayers, of Roanoke, Va., N. & W. assistant general manager and general chairman of the railway's system-wide War Savings Bond campaign. A member of the War Savings staff of the Treasury department wrote:

"May I offer you congratulations on the good job of work you and your committee have done among the employees of your railroad. Your railroad is the first in the country, having more than 20,000 employees, to make this enviable record. You have every reason to be proud of the record you have established, and we of the Treasury department greatly appreciate your cooperation in this matter."

During the N. & W. employees' special War Savings Bond campaign—April 15-May 5—21,815 employees of the railway, or 98.16 percent of the total, purchased or subscribed to bonds having a maturity value of $2,457,475.00.

Chairman Ayers said today that additional subscriptions which have been received will boost the railway employees participation to 99 percent.

RETAILERS MAY PICK THURSDAY FOR 'HOLIDAY'

Afternoon Closing During Summer May Be Changed From Wednesday

WILL CONTACT BANKS Payroll Deductions To Aid In Bond Sales Studied By Merchants

All Cincinnati retail stores will close all day Saturday, May 30, this being Memorial Day. However, all stores will remain open until 9 p. m. Friday, May 29.

Retail merchants at a meeting Wednesday evening discussed several issues of importance in respect to closing hours. No definite action was taken in regard to the summer half holiday but a committee will contact local banks in an effort to have the day changed to Thursday this year to accommodate persons from the county who are in town on Wednesday for the weekly livestock sale.

Group members also received information on the pay roll deduction plan of buying War Bonds and Stamps with many merchants announcing that such programs are already in effect, with others saying that they would put the proposal before their employees. At present the government states that 10,000,000 workers are registered in the deduction system but an effort is being made to triple that number.

In a round table discussion of the price ceiling program merchants were warned that recent rulings of the OPA demand that a posting of their prices merchants must use the single sheet plan. Many persons have been returning information on their March prices in booklet, loose leaf or layers of list forms. These reports will not be accepted in the future.

Another recent ruling issued May 19 states that ceiling prices under competition can be adjusted by filing a form that can be obtained from the Ohio State Council of Retail Merchants with offices in Columbus.

C. C. Leonard had charge of Wednesday's confab and another meeting is expected in the near future to take definite action on the Summer closing proposition.

DOOLITTLE SEES MORE ATTACKS ON AXIS CITIES

WASHINGTON, May 21—"Many more surprises for Japan and Germany" were promised today by Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle who led the American bombing raid on Japan April 18.

In a radio speech describing the attack, Doolittle said that the greatest result of the raid "is the material and psychological damage we inflicted on the enemy," adding that "in neither respect is the enemy likely to recover soon."

Doolittle, who on Tuesday received the Congressional Medal of Honor for carrying out the successful attack, said that it had been carefully rehearsed in the United States.

"This was to be no dare-devil, hot or miss attack," he said. "We planned carefully; we worked long and hard to make our mission a success. The planes themselves—B-25s—were especially equipped for the mission."

"They are typical of the young men of our Army Air Force today, superior to any enemy," he said. "The B-25s were typical of the planes which our aircraft factories are producing—superior to any aircraft."

"I bring you this message from Shanghai—La—my faith in American fighting men has never been so strong. We have in our training centers, on our production lines, the pattern from which will be built many more surprises for Japan and Germany. It is the ultimate pattern for our own victory."

MANY SCHOOLS HOLDING THEIR GRADUATION RITE

In concluding the county high school commencement schedule four rural senior classes will hold exercises tonight with the last program to take place Friday evening.

Tonight at Darby township Dr. Walter Collins of the state board of education will address the graduating class; Dean E. J. Ashbaugh of Miami University, the seniors of Washington township; Dr. Charles Martz, editor of "Our Times," Ashville; and Dr. E. E. Lewis, Ohio State university, at New Holland. Dr. Roy Burkhardt, pastor of community churches in the Grandview area, will address the final commencement at Wilkesport high school Friday evening.

joy each other's company very much. We have plenty of time."

While sipping his drink, Leavy revealed that he did not plan to quit Congress until the Appropriations subcommittee, of which he is a member, had acted on the Interior and Agriculture budgets.

Ikkes and Wickard exchanged a quick glance, and then both grabbed for the check. Wickard won out.

"But I invited you," protested Leavy. "I insist on paying."

"Not at all, Charlie," replied Wickard. "I'm delighted to buy you a drink. You know, I had no idea you were going to stay in Congress to consider our appropriations. That's great news."

Later Ikkes brought howls when, as toastmaster, he related the incident. "It's not surprising to me," he said, "that Claude got that check. He's an expert at grabbing off things."

Wickard shot back: "That's the first time the Agriculture department has ever beaten the Interior department to the draw since I came to Washington."

THE OLD GRAY TRAIN

Miss Jessie Sumner is serving only her second term in Congress but the blond, effusive Illinois representative can give some of her veteran colleagues a bizarre lesson when it comes to protecting the interests of constituents.

At a hearing of the House Banking Committee on a bill to aid small business, Miss Sumner closely questioned Major George C. Smith of the Army and Navy Munitions board about a regulation against the payment of brokerage fees on war contracts.

"Do you know of any contract that has been voided for that reason?" she inquired. Smith replied that "offhand" he knew of none.

"Are you ready to assure this committee that a contract would be voided if it could be shown that one of these brokers had collected a fee?" persisted Miss Sumner.

"The Army would have no other choice," said Smith. "It is a legal requirement. They must void it."

"Well, it seems very astonishing to me," retorted Miss Sumner, "because every congressman knows of people who are negotiating contracts, and that certain people are getting 5 percent of large contracts, and still no contracts are voided."

"Does the lady know of one case where that has been done, where the contract has not been voided?" broke in Representative Wright Patman of Texas.

"Oh, yes," retorted Miss Sumner sweetly, "but I don't care to give the name of the person involved, because he happens to be a constituent of mine. Everybody else has gotten theirs. Why should I sacrifice a constituent?"

WAR FLASHES

Belgian anti-Axis saboteurs have blown up one of the largest synthetic fertilizer plants in their country. This is a serious blow to the Nazis, who have been using the output of this plant for food production in Germany. . . . For more than a month there have been no cereals of any kind on the Sofia market. Also the lack of feed, commandeered by the Nazis, is so severe that thousands of horses have died of starvation.

Four small Buffalo concerns are demonstrating that where there is a will there is a way to aid war production. Three of them, tombstone manufacturers, have obtained contracts to sandblast castings for battleships and machine-gun mounts. The fourth, which formerly made wig-wag turn signals for trucks, is now making armaments parts. . . .

VAN CAMP WINS HIGHWAY WORK ON $7,686 BID

State Highway department has let a contract for bituminous treatment for numerous Pickaway county roads this Summer to T. D. Van Camp of Columbus on his bid of $7,686.

Included in the contract is also highway work in Franklin and Fairfield counties, most of the project being on highways which feed into the Lockbourne air base area.

A total of 18.25 miles is included in the project, which was estimated to cost $7,691.38.

Goering's Talk Hints Of Serious Situation

LONDON, May 21—The people of Germany, led to believe at the outset of the war that victory would be theirs in a matter of months, face the prospect of ever worsening conditions within their homeland, observers said today following analysis of an address by Reich Marshal Hermann Goering to an assemblage of workers.

There need be little speculation on the hardships the German people have been forced to endure since Hitler plunged them into the world's greatest conflict, it was said, since the Nazis themselves are beginning to unfold the entire story bit by bit.

Goering admitted that the present conflict is the hardest war Germany has had to fight. Then he pointed out that those at home had to pay a price as well as the men on the battle fields.

He admitted that the Winter campaign in Russia had been "terrible," then warned that conditions on the home front probably would grow more difficult to bear.

"Do not always believe everything that is said," Goering told the workers.

"A war decree is not issued merely to make life more difficult for you. Sometimes one must be harsh. Harshness is the only way to achieve triumph. . . .

"Never yet in Germany have machine-guns driven German workers to work."

Discussing the Winter fighting in Russia, Goering said: "A large white cover of death spread itself over the vast country.

"The Russians could march across frozen lakes and marshes and at night fall on us from the rear."

"There was a veritable stream of bad news. The Russians were at our rear. Guerrillas blew up railways and cut out supply lines. The terrible cold almost froze our troops."

Belgian anti-Axis saboteurs have blown up one of the largest synthetic fertilizer plants in their country. This is a serious blow to the Nazis, who have been using the output of this plant for food production in Germany. . . . For more than a month there have been no cereals of any kind on the Sofia market. Also the lack of feed, commandeered by the Nazis, is so severe that thousands of horses have died of starvation.

Four small Buffalo concerns are demonstrating that where there is a will there is a way to aid war production. Three of them, tombstone manufacturers, have obtained contracts to sandblast castings for battleships and machine-gun mounts. The fourth, which formerly made wig-wag turn signals for trucks, is now making armaments parts. . . .

Goering's Talk Hints Of Serious Situation

LONDON, May 21—The people of Germany, led to believe at the outset of the war that victory would be theirs in a matter of months, face the prospect of ever worsening conditions within their homeland, observers said today following analysis of an address by Reich Marshal Hermann Goering to an assemblage of workers.

There need be little speculation on the hardships the German people have been forced to endure since Hitler plunged them into the world's greatest conflict, it was said, since the Nazis themselves are beginning to unfold the entire story bit by bit.

Goering admitted that the present conflict is the hardest war Germany has had to fight. Then he pointed out that those at home had to pay a price as well as the men on the battle fields.

He admitted that the Winter campaign in Russia had been "terrible," then warned that conditions on the home front probably would grow more difficult to bear.

"Do not always believe everything that is said," Goering told the workers.

"A war decree is not issued merely to make life more difficult for you... sometimes one must be harsh. Harshness is the only way to achieve triumph. . . . Never yet in Germany have spread itself over the vast country.

"The Russians could march across frozen lakes and marshes and at night fall on us from the rear."

"There was a veritable stream of bad news. The Russians were at our rear. Guerrillas blew up railways and cut out supply lines. The terrible cold almost froze our troops."

NAME-CALLING

"JAP" is a short and convenient word to use for the Eastern enemy. It's neat and easy for headlines. So is "Nazi," so is "Hun." So, for the matter of that, are "Yank" and "Anzac," also "Dutch" for "soldiers of the Netherlands East Indies," which is a phrase much too long for comfort.

That, however, is about as far as it is wise to go in nicknaming friends or foes. Especially is it true of the enemy. It is not good to use unpleasant names for them, until these words get worked into the language and become hard or even impossible to eradicate.

Let there be no mistake. The enemy is in the wrong. The methods are beneath contempt. But that's just it. We should not try to name the methods which are beneath our naming.

Unquestionably the German people have stood behind Hitler. A whole generation in Japan, also, has been reared on hate. But we do not want a generation of our children reared on any such horrible mental food.

Let us keep our own speech clean, strong, high above name-calling. We shall have to live in the same world with these people afterward—have to teach them for a generation our ways, until self-respect and decency once more rise among them as rightful human heritage. Let us set the good example. Let us not soil our tongues nor our children's minds with epithets which we shall later be ashamed to have uttered. This is not softness for the enemy but strength for ourselves.

GANDHI THE PRACTICAL

PETAINE is perhaps the world's most prominent figure today who is over 80 years old. He is not a very good argument for putting people of that age in high office, but there he is.

At any rate, there can be no doubt who is the most eminent man of those who in their 70's. It is Mahatma Gandhi, now in his 74th year.

One of the most familiar figures on this planet, he has arrived at that supreme stage of fame: he is a by-word, so well known that wise cracks can be made about him and be everywhere understood.

Less known is his practical side. In his 30's he was so successful a lawyer that his annual income was $25,000 to $30,000 a year. This was in South Africa, too, which is not a rich country. His money-making past has been thrust behind him, and now few people know that, by the hard test of financial success, his dreamer can match the hardest-headed lawyer or business executive.

His practical sense, it is to be hoped, is

U. S. PLANES VIA ALASKA?

WASHINGTON — Strange as it may seem, the Russians, even today, will not permit the delivery of planes from the United States by way of Alaska and the Bering Straits to Siberia.

The trouble is not in the route. It is no secret that on the American side, the bases are ready or nearly ready. There are no long hops involved—no over-water hops at all, except the Bering Sea, which is very narrow at the Straits. The Army Air Force ferrying command is ready to do the job—as soon as the Russians will permit.

But the Russians, dire as is their need for equipment, regard the danger from Japan as more acute. If they permitted the United States to make such deliveries, this would constitute a new U. S.-Soviet partnership for war, and would breach the agreement between the Soviets and the Japs regarding the Pacific.

Not long ago the U. S. Army proposed to send about thirty experts, not in uniform, to inspect runways and installations to make sure that U. S. types of planes were equipped to operate on Siberian airports. But the Russians said no.

U. S. REACTION

U. S. reaction to this is partly impatience, partly sympathy. We are anxious to get the planes to Russia the short way, rather than over the long, irksome, dangerous route via the North Atlantic and Murmansk. However, Roosevelt and Hull also understand the Russian point that they have taken a lot of troops out of Siberia and can't afford to fight on two fronts.

The Russians definitely want a second front. But they want it in Europe, where somebody else will divert Nazi troops from the Caucasus. They don't want it in their own backyard where they will have to divert their own troops.

Two possible developments may alter this stand: 1, attack by Japan; 2, severance of the two other supply routes namely via Murmansk and Archangel, and via the Persian Gulf.

ICKES VS. WICKARD

The 70 guests at the testimonial dinner for popular Representative Charles H. Leavy of Washington, who will soon retire to become a federal judge, included many Capitol notables.

However, the guests who commanded most attention were Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes and Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard. Because Ickes and Wickard have differed over who should have jurisdiction over the Forest Service, everybody waited to see if there would be any fireworks.

Leavy is a good friend of both, but he loves an argument, so he grabbed them as they entered the hotel and insisted they all have a soft drink together.

"I'm thirsty," said Leavy, with a mischievous grin, "and I know you fellows en-

Effects of Gas in War Not as Bad as Bullets

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE WAR GASES have not found their way into the newspapers very much during the present conflict. This is not entirely due, I understand, to the strength of popular prejudice against them. As a matter of fact, there is little use in talking about prejudice against various forms of lethal weapons.

Men most familiar with its various aspects state that the use of gas is one of the least brutal methods of warfare. Neither at the time nor afterward is gas poisoning nearly as bad as gunshot wounds. Prentice said in 1935: "If the man who is gassed survives the war, he comes out body-whole as God made him, not the legless, armless or deformed cripple produced by the mangle, rending effects of high explosives, gunshot wounds and bayonet thrusts."

No Chance To Use Gas

The real reason for the lack of prominence of gas in this war is that practically nobody who was in retreat had gases to use or a chance to use them. A prominent military observer told me the other day that it is quite possible that the Germans will use gas as a defensive measure if they have to retreat before the Russian army this spring. The Russians and the Greeks didn't have gas so they couldn't use it when they retreated. Gas is a poor weapon to use on the offensive, because if you lay down a barrage of gas, you have to move your own army immediately into it while the other army moves away from it.

War gases are classified on the basis of their chemical properties and the kind of action they have. They can also be very carefully selected with a view to their particular kind of action to tactical advantage. There are five general kinds of war gases:

Lachrymators.—These have a more or less selective action on the eye. In other words, they can be breathed in without doing any harm but they cause a large secretion of tears, pain and swelling of the eye and temporary blindness. They have few if any after effects and their main use is temporarily to reduce the fighting efficiency of the enemy.

Sternutators are those which irritate the upper respiratory tract. They cause sneezing, coughing, intense headache, vomiting and thus create physical disability. Most of them have a considerable amount of penetrability and can get through the gas mask and cause the soldier to remove the mask, thus exposing him to other more toxic gases which are usually employed at the same time.

Irritants of Lungs.—Some of these simply irritate the bronchial tubes and some of them penetrate the lung cells, perhaps to produce more lasting and permanent disability.

Vesicants.—These act on the surface of the body to produce irritation and blistering. The skin, the eye and the respiratory tract are particularly vulnerable to their action.

Systemic Toxic Agents.—This group was a great disappointment to the Germans in the last war. Theoretically, they would be the best of the gases because they would overwhelm the enemy with poisonous effects. But they were found unsuitable for chemical warfare because it was almost impossible to produce lethal concentrations on the battlefield. Sub-lethal concentrations were harmless.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

TIBBY THOUGHT it would be a shame for Marg to resign her position as air hostess when she not only liked it so much, but had proved herself so competent, for once more Marg had become a sort of heroine. There was an epidemic of typhoid, the result of heavy fall rains that flooded all creeks and rivers and played general unexpected havoc in a large portion of the more southern route. All hostesses were asked to volunteer and, of course, Marg had been among them.

"It was dreadful," Marg said, in telling about this experience later, "to see those people so confused and bewildered, many of them homeless, separated from their families. It brought home the horrors of what war must be like on the other side. And this, I presume, was only horror on a smaller scale."

"We worked night and day," she went on, "handing out warm, dry clothing, feeding and comforting the children, giving anti-tetanus and typhoid injections. As soon as we were through with one group of people, another, more miserable, would be brought in."

"That's another reason," she finished, "not needing to name the other, 'why I feel, Tibby, that I ought to resign and go back to nursing. If I could be of any help, I feel I ought to be doing it. If I were sure I could get to England I'd go in a minute.'"

Tibby thought that was very fine of Marg. Again she was proud of her friend. Maybe that was the solution to her personal problem—in doing for others to put aside her own heartache.

"John says," Marg's plain face lighted up as it always did when she mentioned Captain Mercer's name, "that I should wait. He feels that America eventually will be dragged into war again. In fact, he feels that we should be in it now. He says we cannot isolate our country, not when hate is turned loose against innocent peoples. When—and if—we do go in, he will join up, and he feels I should wait until then, too. But I don't know."

I sometimes think there is no use in waiting, since waiting, in every way, is so futile for us."

"Then it's not any better?" Tibby asked gently. She had hoped that it might be, now that Marg no longer was hostess on the captain's flights. Apparently she and "John" still loved each other as desperately as before, more desperately, perhaps, as separation does not always cure, but rather may intensify a great love.

Marg shook her head. "No better," she said grimly. "We resolve never to see each other again—which is what we should do, I know. Then either fate throws us together—John was among the pilots who flew down to help out in the flood, too, you see—or we find we cannot stay apart. It's like cutting off a hand," she added, "like trying to go on breathing without any lungs. You're alive—and yet you're dead."

Tibby shivered. She had thought she wanted love, when it came to her, to be wild and hopeless, without reservations, instead of the milder form that Tommy once had offered her, but now she was glad that she had decided she did not want love at all—not in any shape. Look what it had done to poor Marg. It was a terrible thing, something indeed to avoid like a plague.

"Maybe it will all come out right in the end," she offered with what small hope, in an odd adage, she could summon.

"Only in story books, my dear," Marg said. "That's why the movies insist upon the happy climax for every ending. They know their customers never find it in real life. John and I know it will never be for us. That's why we snatch the little bit of happiness—if you can call it that—that the present offers."

It's like singing as the ship goes down, firing one last defiant gun as your plane breaks into flames and hurtles toward the hard earth, but we know we're not alone—think of all the young people all over the world who today have no hope for their love."

"You make it very sad," Tibby said gravely. Maybe Marg was right. Life was pretty confused these days, pretty hopeless, yet not utterly so. As long as there was life there remained hope, too. That was another odd adage, but wise. One dared not give up faith and all hope, for there was something good left in living still, or life would indeed be that living death.

"Life is sad," Marg said. Marg, who usually spoke in wise-cracks, pretending a brittle surface to cover her soft young heart. "It's made mostly of gray cloth, with only a trimming of brighter colors, but it's something to have had the trimmings, Tibby. It makes the rest bearable, so don't feel too sorry for me," she added in her old bantering tone, seeing the distress in Tibby's dark eyes.

"But life is not just what we know here," Tibby reminded. "This cloth, with its gray trimming, is only a small part."

"You mean that the life to come is more important than this—or any one's sufferings here?" Marg was serious again, touched by what Tibby had said. "I suppose you are right. Some of us—the whole mad world, it seems—have lost our old faiths and beliefs in a heaven. Maybe that's what's wrong with our world of today. We may all have to find our way again. John says," she added, her tone warm and soft, "that the spirit of man has wings. And somehow—I believe he may be right."

"I'm sure he is," Tibby said. (To Be Continued)

You are an ambitious person, if you have a birthday today, unsuited in effort, but often given to impractical ideas. You should develop originality and self-dependence. You have an artistic temperament. A mixed grill awaits you in the next year. Good and ill-fortune descend almost simultaneously. Guard against fraudulent misrepresentation and deception in business, correspondence, travel and love affairs. A proud, dogmatic, determined, self-willed and obstinate person will be the child who is born on this date. Nevertheless, such a one will also be good natured, artistic, poetical and psychic. 'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE Hour By Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up and about the ville in the rain. Right now, we have everything we need in the way of moisture. Some farmers are beginning to complain. Only a few days ago they feared drought, and the fear was justified. Met John Boggs and Les May at the post. Les, who conducts the local rationing activity, has a big job on his hands and a bigger one looming. Almost everyone has learned that obtaining tires for pleasure cars is an impossibility, so there is little difficulty in that department, but the sugar situation remains a headache.

More and more good news from Russia. And to think that only a few months ago I placed the Reds in the same class as the Nazis. Well, being wrong is not too difficult these times. Chatted with a man from Detroit and he told something of the industrial activity there. Seems that Hitler is soon to learn that our automotive industry is a greater organization than even we thought. And we knew it was big and efficient.

Met two boys slated to go out in the next draft. Fine youngsters, one of them with particular talent in his chosen line of endeavor. Left them cussing to myself because of the ambitions of mad leaders in Europe and Asia who are willing to trade off such promising youth in an attempt to satisfy their lust for power. Gained only one satisfaction out of the situation and that was that these boys know why they are fighting, know the truth, and are willing to die if necessary in order to keep the world clean and free.

The day when Hitler was known as the Fuehrer has now passed. I think he may safely and permanently be called "the Fearer." Item after item coming out of middle Europe indicates that the Germans either are seeing the writing on the wall or suspect that it is there. Little if any bragging in Berlin

NAME-CALLING

"JAP" is a short and convenient word to use for the Eastern enemy. It's neat and easy for headlines. So is "Nazi," so is "Hun." So, for the matter of that, are "Yank" and "Anzac," also "Dutch" for "soldiers of the Netherlands East Indies," which is a phrase much too long for comfort.

That, however, is about as far as it is wise to go in nicknaming friends or foes. Especially is it true of the enemy. It is not good to use unpleasant names for them, until these words get worked into the language and become hard or even impossible to eradicate.

Let there be no mistake. The enemy is in the wrong. The methods are beneath contempt. But that's just it. We should not try to name the methods which are beneath our naming.

Unquestionably the German people have stood behind Hitler. A whole generation in Japan, also, has been reared on hate. But we do not want a generation of our children reared on any such horrible mental food.

Let us keep our own speech clean, strong, high above name-calling. We shall have to live in the same world with these people afterward—have to teach them for a generation our ways, until self-respect and decency once more rise among them as rightful human heritage. Let us set the good example. Let us not soil our tongues nor our children's minds with epithets which we shall later be ashamed to have uttered. This is not softness for the enemy but strength for ourselves.

GANDHI THE PRACTICAL

PETAIN is perhaps the world's most prominent figure today who is over 80 years old. He is not a very good argument for putting people of that age in high office, but there he is.

At any rate, there can be no doubt who is the most eminent man of those who in their 70's. It is Mahatma Gandhi, now in his 74th year.

One of the most familiar figures on this planet, he has arrived at that supreme stage of fame: he is a by-word, so well known that wise cracks can be made about him and be everywhere understood.

Less known is his practical side. In his 30's he was so successful a lawyer that his annual income was $25,000 to $30,000 a year. This was in South Africa, too, which is not a rich country. His money-making past has been thrust behind him, and now few people know that, by the hard test of financial success, his dreamer can match the hardest-headed lawyer or business executive.

His practical sense, it is to be hoped, is

U. S. PLANES VIA ALASKA?

WASHINGTON — Strange as it may seem, the Russians, even today, will not permit the delivery of planes from the United States by way of Alaska and the Bering Straits to Siberia.

The trouble is not in the route. It is no secret that on the American side, the bases are ready or nearly ready. There are no long hops involved—no over-water hops at all, except the Bering Sea, which is very narrow at the Straits. The Army Air Force ferrying command is ready to do the job—as soon as the Russians will permit.

But the Russians, dire as is their need for equipment, regard the danger from Japan as more acute. If they permitted the United States to make such deliveries, this would constitute a new U. S.-Soviet partnership for war, and would breach the agreement between the Soviets and the Japs regarding the Pacific.

Not long ago the U. S. Army proposed to send about thirty experts, not in uniform, to inspect runways and installations to make sure that U. S. types of planes were equipped to operate on Siberian airports. But the Russians said no.

U. S. REACTION

U. S. reaction to this is partly impatience, partly sympathy. We are anxious to get the planes to Russia the short way, rather than over the long, irksome, dangerous route via the North Atlantic and Murmansk. However, Roosevelt and Hull also understand the Russian point that they have taken a lot of troops out of Siberia and can't afford to fight on two fronts.

The Russians definitely want a second front. But they want it in Europe, where somebody else will divert Nazi troops from the Caucasus. They don't want it in their own backyard where they will have to divert their own troops.

Two possible developments may alter this stand: 1, attack by Japan; 2, severance of the two other supply routes namely via Murmansk and Archangel, and via the Persian Gulf.

ICKES VS. WICKARD

The 70 guests at the testimonial dinner for popular Representative Charles H. Leavy of Washington, who will soon retire to become a federal judge, included many Capital notables.

However, the guests who commanded most attention were Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes and Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard. Because Ickes and Wickard have differed over who should have jurisdiction over the Forest Service, everybody waited to see if there would be any fireworks.

Leavy is a good friend of both, but he loves an argument, so he grabbed them as they entered the hotel and insisted they all have a soft drink together.

"I'm thirsty," said Leavy, with a mischievous grin, "and I know you fellows en-

Effects of Gas in War Not as Bad as Bullets

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE WAR GASES have not found their way into the newspapers very much during the present conflict. This is not entirely due, I understand, to the strength of popular prejudice against them. As a matter of fact, there is little use in talking about prejudice against various forms of lethal weapons.

Men most familiar with its various aspects state that the use of gas is one of the least brutal methods of warfare. Neither at the time nor afterward is gas poisoning nearly as bad as gunshot wounds. Prentice said in 1935: "If the man who is gassed survives the war, he comes out body-whole as God made him, not the legless, armless or deformed cripple produced by the mangle, rending effects of high explosives, gunshot wounds and bayonet thrusts."

No Chance To Use Gas

The real reason for the lack of prominence of gas in this war is that practically nobody who is in retreat had gases to use or a chance to use them. A prominent military observer told me the other day that it is quite possible that the Germans will use gas as a defensive measure if they have to retreat before the Russian army this spring. The Russians and the Greeks didn't have gas so they couldn't use it when they retreated. Gas is a poor weapon to use on the offensive, because if you lay down a barrage of gas, you have to move your own army immediately into it while the other army moves away from it.

War gases are classified on the basis of their chemical properties and the kind of action they have. They can also be very carefully selected with a view to their particular kind of action to tactical advantage. There are five general kinds of war gases:

Lachrymators.—These have a more or less selective action on the eye. In other words, they can be breathed in without doing any harm but they cause a large secretion of tears, pain and swelling of the eye and temporary blindness. They have few if any after effects and their main use is temporarily to reduce the fighting efficiency of the enemy.

Sternutators are those which irritate the upper respiratory tract. They cause sneezing, coughing, intense headache, vomiting and thus create physical disability. Most of them have a considerable amount of penetrability and can get through the gas mask and cause the soldier to remove the mask, thus exposing him to other more toxic gases which are usually employed at the same time.

Irritants of Lungs

Lung Irritants.—Some of these simply irritate the bronchial tubes and some of them penetrate the lung cells, perhaps to produce more lasting and permanent disability.

Vesicants.—These act on the surface of the body to produce irritation and blistering. The skin, the eye and the respiratory tract are particularly vulnerable to their action.

Systemic Toxic Agents.—This group was a great disappointment to the Germans in the last war. Theoretically, they would be the best of the gases because they would overwhelm the enemy with poisonous effects. But they were found unsuitable for chemical warfare because it was almost impossible to produce lethal concentrations on the battlefield. Sub-lethal concentrations were harmless.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

TIBBY THOUGHT it would be a shame for Marg to resign her position as air hostess when she not only liked it so much, but had proved herself so competent, for once more Marg had become a sort of heroine. There was an epidemic of typhoid, the result of heavy fall rains that flooded all creeks and rivers and played general unexpected havoc in a large portion of the more southern route. All hostesses were asked to volunteer and, of course, Marg had been among them.

"It was dreadful," Marg said, in telling about this experience later, "to see those people so confused and bewildered, many of them homeless, separated from their families. It brought home the horrors of what war must be like on the other side. And this, I presume, was only horror on a smaller scale."

"We worked night and day," she went on, "handing out warm, dry clothing, feeding and comforting the children, giving anti-tetanus and typhoid injections. As soon as we were through with one group of people, another, more miserable, would be brought in."

"That's another reason," she finished, not needing to name the other, "why I feel, Tibby, that I ought to resign and go back to nursing. If I could be of any help, I feel I ought to be doing it. If I were sure I could get to England I'd go in a minute."

Tibby thought that was very fine of Marg. Again she was proud of her friend. Maybe that was the solution to her personal problem—in doing for others to put aside her own heartache.

"John says," Marg's plain face lighted up as it always did when she mentioned Captain Mercer's name, "that I should wait. He feels that America eventually will be dragged into war again. In fact, he feels that we should be in it now. He says we cannot isolate our country, not when hate is turned loose against innocent people. When—and if—we do go in, he will join up, and he feels I should wait until then, too. But I don't know."

"I sometimes think there is no use in waiting, since waiting, in every way, is so futile for us."

"Then it's not any better?" Tibby asked gently. She had hoped that it might be, now that Marg no longer was hostess on the captain's flights. Apparently she and "John" still loved each other as desperately as before, more desperately, perhaps, as separation does not always cure but rather may intensify a great love.

Marg shook her head. "No better," she said grimly. "We resolve never to see each other again—which is what we should do, I know. Then either fate throws us together—John was among the pilots who flew down to help out in the flood, too, you see—or we find we cannot stay apart. It's like cutting off a hand," she added, "like trying to go on breathing without any lungs. You're alive—and yet you're dead."

Tibby shivered. She had thought she wanted love, when it came to her, to be wild and hopeless, without reservations. Instead of the milder form that Tommy once had offered her, but now she was glad that she had decided she did not want love at all—not in any shape. Look what it had done to poor Marg. It was a terrible thing, something indeed to avoid like a plague.

"Maybe it will all come out right in the end," she offered with what small hope, in an old adage, she could summon.

"Only in story books, my dear," Marg said. "That's why the movies insist upon the happy clench for every ending. They know their customers never find it in real life. John and I know it will never be for us. That's why we snatch the little bit of happiness—if you can call it that—that the present offers. It's like singing the ship goes down, firing our last defiant gun as your plane breaks into flames and hurtles toward the hard earth, but we know we're not alone—think of all the young people all over the world who today have no hope for their love."

"You make it very sad," Tibby said gravely. Maybe Marg was right. Life was pretty confused these days, pretty hopeless, yet not utterly so. As long as there was life there remained hope, too. There was another old adage, but wise. One dared not give up faith and, with it, all hope that there was good latent in living still, or life would indeed be that living death.

"Life is sad," Marg said. Marg, who usually spoke in wise-cracks, pretending a brittle surface to cover her soft young heart. "It's made mostly of gray cloth, with only a trimming of brighter colors, but it's something to have had the trimmings, Tibby. It makes the rest bearable, so don't feel too sorry for me," she added in her old bantering tone, seeing the distress in Tibby's dark eyes.

"But life is not just what we know here," Tibby reminded. "This cloth, with its gay trimming, is only a small part."

"You mean that the life to come is more important than this—or any one's sufferings here." Marg was serious again, touched by what Tibby had said. "I suppose you are right. Some of us, the whole mad world, it seems—have lost our old faiths and beliefs in a heaven. Maybe that's what's wrong with our world of today. We may all have to find our way again. John says," she added, her tone warm and soft, "that the spirit of man HAS wings. And somehow—I believe he may be right."

"I'm sure he is," Tibby said.

Captain Mercer must be a man worthy of the love she had given him, if he did have smaller human failings. Tibby did not believe he would fall Marg in the end, so maybe her love would not have been given in vain. "That's a beautiful thought," Tibby said. Man's spirit has wings—said by a man who lived most of his life up in the clouds; a flyer who knew how true that was, for that was how Tibby herself felt about flying. It brought one close to heaven, close to the old faiths—to God.

Maybe then, too, there was some beauty and joy in love. It might not, after all, be entirely suffering and sorrow. It might not always be a mess.

Just the same, Tibby still preferred to remain heart-free as long as she could. She had thought that maybe Tommy was the one, the only one; but she had not been sure—she had wondered how you could be sure when the right one, the only one for you, really came.

Marg seemed to be sure, so no doubt when the time came, Tibby would be, too. Your heart must tell you; it would surely know. With Tommy, although Tibby had been so very fond of him, her heart had remained uncertain because the idea of being in love with Tommy had come so suddenly, so unexpectedly—in a parking lot at Coney Island. Even Tommy himself had not seemed sure.

Maybe it had to be someone unknown, unfamiliar, someone exciting, as Tommy had said to Steena, in saying that he could not find excitement in Tibby, a girl he could remember in pigtailed and with freckles on her nose. Maybe there could not be romance with someone with whom you argued and differed and quarreled, as she had with Tommy, although they had had good times as well.

Anyway, Tibby told herself, she was not going to worry about it. Love was not the most important thing in the world. There were work and doing for others and, oh, a number of things. She was going to put love and Tommy Dare completely out of her mind. She was no longer going to feel hurt, even at Tommy's new, strange behavior. If he did not want to be friends, he need not be, although Tibby would resume her old friendly attitude, if not as warmly, toward him. She no longer would run away or be stilted and cool. She would be nice to Tommy, even if he would not be nice to her.

This made her feel much better. It even seemed to take some of the hurt out of her heart. That talk with Marg had helped Tibby, if it had not helped her friend.

Tibby was thinking all this as she dressed that evening to go out again with Wayne, unsuspecting that these same thoughts were to be tested—or jolted—within the next few hours.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour By Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up and about the ville in the rain. Right now, we have everything we need in the way of moisture. Some farmers are beginning to complain. Only a few days ago they feared drought, and the fear was justified. Met John Boggs and Les May at the post. Les, who conducts the local rationing activity, has a big job on his hands and a bigger one looming. Almost everyone has learned that obtaining tires for pleasure cars is an impossibility, so there is little difficulty in that department, but the sugar situation remains a headache.

More and more good news from Russia. And to think that only a few months ago I placed the Reds in the same class as the Nazis. Well, being wrong is not too difficult these times. Chatted with a man from Detroit and he told something of the industrial activity there. Seems that Hitler is soon to learn that our automotive industry is a greater organization than even we thought. And we knew it was big and efficient.

Met two boys slated to go out in the next draft. Fine youngsters, one of them with particular talent in his chosen line of endeavor. Left them cussing to myself because of the ambitions of mad leaders in Europe and Asia who are willing to trade off such promising youth in an attempt to satisfy their lust for power. Gained only one satisfaction out of the situation and that was that these boys know why they are fighting, know the truth, and are willing to die if necessary in order to keep the world clean and free.

The day when Hitler was known as the Fuehrer has now passed. I think he may safely and permanently be called "the Fearer." Item after item coming out of middle Europe indicates that the Germans either are seeing the writing on the wall or suspect that it is there. Little if any bragging in Berlin and more and more often the German people are being told that they are fighting for their lives. And only a few weeks ago they heard often that they were marching gloriously toward destiny of world mastery.

In this issue you will find an article dealing with your proper conduct in the event of an air raid. Read it carefully, memorize the details. Your life, lives of members of your family and your friends may depend on your knowledge one of these days. Please don't be one of those persons who insist that "it can't happen here." No one knows for certain that it can not happen here, so it is best that you be prepared to meet any emergency. Control of incendiary bombs is not difficult if you know how, but without knowledge you look right into the face of disaster and probable death.

We are looking to someone else to do our fighting for us. It seems that the least we can possibly do is be ready to fight here at home in the event the enemy reaches this far. And he can reach this far. We are less than 400 miles from the Atlantic seaboard. And we are situated in one of the most important defense districts in the entire United States.

You're Telling Me!

And then there's the forward-looking fellow who wants to trade his almost tireless motorcar for a gliderplane in good condition.

News that shirts may be shorter is of interest to everyone but the horse bettor who last his a long time ago.

Grandpappy Jenkins was sure there was something else besides his sugar ration and coalless bin to worry about. Now he remembers—the second income installment falls due in June.

A Toronto newspaper says the cucumber is 95 percent water. That's funny—they don't taste a bit like a night club highball.

Adolf Hitler certainly will have a distinctive place in history. He's the first Reichsfuehrer Germany has ever had, and now it looks fairly certain that he will also be the last.

Good Humor month in Germany is half over and even Der Fuehrer hasn't been able to break out in a half-hearted grin.

Book Review Is Enjoyed By Methodist Circle 7

Piano Music Adds
To Program At
Barnhart Home

Thirty-two members and guests of Circle 7 of the W.S.C.S. of the Methodist church heard an interesting and instructive book review, Wednesday at the meeting of the group in home of Mrs. Emmett W. Barnhart, Northridge road. Mrs. Clyde Barnes of Wiloughby, O., mother of Mrs. Barnhart, reviewed "Northern Nurse" written by Elliott Merick, who also wrote "Frost and Fire" and "True North."

Mrs. Barnes opened her fine discussion with the information that "Northern Nurse" is a true story of a nurse, Kay Austen, born in semi-tropical Sidney, Australia, who desired to go to a real place for real work.

The story deals with her work in the mission hospital at Indian Harbor, Labrador, a mission founded by Dr. Wiltred Grenfell 20 years before. The nurse is presented as one willing to endure hardships and to make sacrifices, and really enjoying the creative contribution of her life. Meeting a dark haired young American who went to Labrador to teach school, the sequel reveals that this stranger proves to be the nurse's future husband and the author of the book.

Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh and Mrs. Leon Van Vleet were heard in several piano duets, "The Dragon Fighter," by Hoffman; Minuet form "Symphony in E Flat;" "Spanish Dance No. 2" by Masyskanski; "Good-Night" by Bendel and "The Mill in the Black Forest" by Ellenberg.

After a short business meeting in charge of Mrs. Charles Fullen, circle chairman, Miss Helen Liston led the devotionals.

Mrs. Emmett W. Barnhart, with Mrs. Fullen and Mrs. C. R. Barnhart assisting, served light refreshments at the close of the party.

Cotton Wedding Suit

ONE famous and also knowing designer, whose brain children are flung far and wide over the whole country, has decided to give a break to war brides' trousseaux.

With the suit a virtual uniform for the quick and unassuming wedding in order these times, this designer figured: "Why not cotton wedding suits?" The answer he made to his own conundrum is sketched, in one version, here today. It is of luxurious, mat surface cotton crepe, a brand new weave of same, in delicious shades of bonbon delicacy.

Skirt and blouse are very softly tailored, the skirt with slight front fullness burgeoning from a shallow hip yoke. The jacket has no lapels and is fitted with a definite waistline. Buttons are very bonbon . . . plastic circles portraying natural flowers, for all the world like party candies. The Spanish sailor is also cotton, with a draped brim trim and crisp tailored bow-knots to accent it.

BLONDIE SPOTS PLANE

Dagwood is asked to substitute at an airplane spotting post, during the Blondie program Monday, May 25, 7:30 p. m. but knowing nothing about planes, he takes Alexander along to help as lookout. During lunch hour, Blondie arrives and suddenly, the trio sees a plane with Japanese markings. They call headquarters and a searching party is sent out for the plane. It turns out to be only a model plane with a gasoline motor but the Bumsteads are justified in the end when it leads to the recovery of a little boy, who had been lost in the mountains for days.

BIG STOCK COMPANY

The nation's largest radio stock company is behind the weekly production of the WPB's new program, "Three Thirds of the Nation," heard Wednesdays on the Blue network.

Castings weekly draw from a reservoir of more than 10,000 screen, stage and radio actors, who have volunteered their services for the morale-building program.

Produced in cooperation with the Hollywood Victory Committee, clearing house for war-time appearances of the Associated Actors and Artists of America, the program has at its disposal, the resident membership of all Southern California.

"Imagine having the acting talent of Hollywood within a telephone's reach," comments Sam Pierce, who produces the broadcast. "The show is a producer's paradise."

RADIO BRIEFS

Kay Kyser has recorded "Jingle, Jangle, Jingle," which he first introduced on the air via his "College of Musical Knowledge." Jukebox operators say the record is a sure-fire winner.

Andre Kostelanetz, conductor of "Pause That Refreshes" on CBS Sundays, has many famous musicians in his orchestra, quite a few being orchestra directors in their own right. What many fans do not know is that Claude Thornhill, now a top flight attraction, used to play piano for Kostelanetz as did Walter Gross, now in charge of several orchestras for CBS.

Office of facts and figures has asked "Lum and Abner" to devote one program a month to some aspect of war work. Their first was a skit built around the importance of doubling up in cars to get to defense work.

Currently on tour in Texas, Horace Heidt moves his "Treasure Chest" air troupe northward, and is due June 26 at the Edgewater Beach hotel in Chicago. The engagement runs through the Summer, ending in September.

Radio technicians, those unsung hard-workers behind the scenes, who can do so much to make or break a program, have paid Dinah Shore one of the nicest compliments the young singer has yet

Book Review Is Enjoyed By Methodist Circle 7

Piano Music Adds
To Program At
Barnhart Home

Thirty-two members and guests of Circle 7 of the W.S.C.S. of the Methodist church heard an interesting and instructive book review Wednesday at the meeting of the group in home of Mrs. Emmett W. Barnhart, Northridge road. Mrs. Clyde Barnes of Willoughby, O., mother of Mrs. Barnhart, reviewed "Northern Nurse" written by Elliott Merrick, who also wrote "Frost and Fire" and "The North".

Mrs. Barnes opened her fine discussion with the information that "Northern Nurse" is a true story of a nurse, Kay Austen, born in semi-tropical Sidney, Australia, who desired to go to a real place for real work.

The story deals with her work in the Mission hospital at Indian Harbor, Labrador, a mission founded by Dr. Wilfred Grenfell 20 years before. The nurse is presented as one willing to endure hardships and to make sacrifices, and really enjoying the creative contribution of her life. Meeting a dark haired young American who went to Labrador to teach school, the sequel reveals that this stranger proves to be the nurse's future husband and the author of the book.

Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh and Mrs. Leon Van Vleet were heard in several piano duets. "The Dragon Fighter," by Hoffman; Minuet form "Symphony in E Flat," "Spanish Dance No. 2" by Massy-Kanski; "Good-Night" by Bendel and "The Mill in the Black Forest" by Ellenberg.

After a short business meeting in charge of Mrs. Charles Fullen, circle chairman, Miss Helen Liston led the devotionals.

Cotton Wedding Suit

ONE famous and also knowing designer, whose brain children are flung far and wide over the whole country, has decided to give a break to war brides' trousseaus.

With the suit a virtual uniform for the quick and unpompous weddings in order these times, this designer figured: "Why not cotton wedding suits?" The answer he made to his own conundrum is sketched, in one version, here today. It is of luxurious, mat surface cotton crepe, a brand new weave of same, in delicious shades of bonbon delicacy.

Skirt and blouse are very softly tailored, the skirt with slight front fullness burgeoning from a shallow hip yoke. The jacket has no lapels and is fitted with a definite waistline. Buttons are very bonbon . . . plastic circles portraying natural flowers, for all the world like party candies. The Spanish sailor is also cotton, with a draped brim trim and crisp tailored bow-knots to accent it.

Marjorie Miller, Marjorie Peters, Dorothy Dumm, Evelyn Conrad, Eleanor Helen and Erma Hoffman, Ruth Ann Sark, Virginia McDowell, Dorothy Hinkle, Mary K. Badger, Ruth Barr, Florine Snyder, Jeanne Noecker and Dorothy Mayberry, and Mrs. Donald Forquer of near Williamsport.

GREEK FIGHTER DEFEATS COLAN FOR TITLE SHOT

CHICAGO, May 21 — Anton Christoforidis of Cleveland definitely was on the trail of his once-held light heavyweight championship today following his smashing 10-round defeat of the New Yorker, Johnny Colan, last night at the Chicago stadium.

Colan, although established a 2-to-1 favorite to conquer the Cleveland Greek, took only one round, fought like a novice during the closing rounds of the battle and was all but out on his feet at the finish.

Colan caught Christoforidis with a staggering left hook to the head early in the second round, but that was his best effort of the evening. The Cleveland fighter held on briefly, then wound up the round with a flurry of rights and lefts. From then on it was mostly the ex-champ.

Colan was down for a one-count in the fifth and at one stage of the bout was so confused he clipped Referee Johnny Behr with a punch on the jaw.

Ring fans agreed Christoforidis' victory put him in line for a return match with Champion Gus Lesnevich of whom he lost the title one year ago tomorrow. Such a match was regarded as a "natural" for a Navy Relief show. Lesnevich already is in the Navy and Christoforidis will apply for enlistment in the U. S. coast guard within a few days.

Last night's fight drew 8,708 customers who paid $15,171 at the gate.

JIM BAGBY OFF TO A FLYING START FOR THE CLEVELAND INDIANS

BOB WAS GOOD TOO!

JIM IS MAKING THE INDIAN FANS FORGET THE LOSS OF BOB FELLER

NEW YORK, May 21—Brooklyn was strutting along six games in the lead of the National league race today, but the Durochermen at the same time were haunted by what happened to them yesterday at the hands of the Cooper brothers of St. Louis. Mort hurled a two-hitter down the exasperated throats of the leaders, while Walker slashed a triple in the fifth inning and scored on Creepy Crisp's long fly to Dixie Walker in centerfield to give the Red Birds a 1 to 0 victory over the Brooks.

The triumph was the fourth in a row by the Cards and the first whitewash of the season suffered by the Dodgers. Whitlow Wyatt hurled four-hit ball, but the only backing he received from his mates was Ducky Medwick's single in the second inning and a bingle by Billy Herman in the ninth. Not a single Dodger reached second all afternoon.

Boston clung to a slim second place margin by whipping the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4 to 3, in 10 frames. Paul Waner was walked by Ken Heintzelman with the bases jammed in the extra stanza to give the Stengelmans the winning nod. The Braves tallied their three runs off Truett Sewell on homers by Nanny Fernandez and Sebi Sisti.

Passeau's Hit Vital. A home run by Pitcher Claude Passeau with one on in the sixth gave the Chicago Cubs inspiration enough to beat the New York Giants, 6 to 3. Bob Carpenter had not allowed a Cub run until the hurler connected in the sixth inning. Manager Mel Ott bashed a two-run homer for the Giants in the opening inning.

Lou Nova Favored Over Savold in Relief Bout

WASHINGTON, May 21—With a shot at Heavyweight King Joe Louis hanging in the balance, Lou Nova, the former Vogt man, today was installed at 2 to 1 odds to whip Lee Savold, of Des Moines, in their scheduled 10-round fight for the Navy Relief society tonight at Griffith stadium.

Mike Jacobs, of the 20th Century club, who is promoting tonight's boxing show, has announced that the winner of the Nova-Savold bout will meet Mello Bettina for the right to face Louis.

It is expected that Nova will enter the ring weighing about 202 and Savold 192.

The semi-final bout on the Navy relief card brings together Steve Mammos and George Abrams, both Washington fighters, who will be battling for a chance to meet Middleweight Champion Tony Zale in Chicago next month or in July.

A crowd of 15,000 and a $40,000 gate is expected tonight.

MEL HARDER TO PITCH IN TOP RUNG EFFORT

CLEVELAND, May 21—Mel Harder will take the mound for the Cleveland Indians today as they face the Boston Red Sox in an attempt to erase the lead the league-leading New York Yankees hold over them. Rookie Tex Hughson will hurl for the Red Sox.

Weather postponed yesterday's contest.

Manager Lou Boudreau announced that Jim Hegan, who made an inspiring debut in his first game for the Redskins Tuesday, will catch again today.

Council Rejects Move To Turn On Street Lights By 4-3 Vote.

ALL MEMBERS STATE VIEWS ON QUESTION

Mayor Gordon In Favor Of Restoring Service, But Question Is Beaten

LYNCH WANTS SURPLUS

J. D. Mason Wants Children To Observe 8:30 Curfew; Others Speak

Main issue before Circleville council Wednesday evening was the possibility of turning the city's street lights on for the remainder of the year. After a lengthy discussion of the question, with both sides giving their views, a vote to have the electric company turn the lights back on was rejected four to three.

At their last meeting, councilmen transferred funds into the general fund to reimburse it for loans made to other funds in the past and due to this unexpected source of income the motion in regard to the lighting problem was brought up.

Frank Lynch, councilman-at-large, objected to the action by council on the issue at present, stating that it would interfere with solving the city's water rate difficulties. He pointed out that the council either had to buy the local plant or enter an agreement with company officials as to increased rates that would be absorbed by the consumers if any plan were worked out. It has also been proposed that the city might bring a two-mill levy for a period of from five to ten years to a vote of the people to defray water expenses.

Mr. Lynch also backed a standing that even though the council, if its 1942 budget works out as expected, might have a balance of $10,000 at the end of the year that 1943 will bring up new and possibly harder financial problems for council members to meet and suggested that the reserve be kept for insuring future needs.

"Finances Above Safety" George Crites, of the third ward, stating that if funds were available that he favored relighting city streets, went on record as saying, "I don't think that we should put our little financial problems above the safety of our men, women and children."

J. D. Mason, First ward, offered his opinion that he wanted to see the council get its head out of water before tackling the lighting question again. He also explained that he feared no serious reaction this Summer if the city's children abide by an 8:30 curfew.

Byron Ebby's stand was given in the following statement, "I'm not in favor of turning anything on or off until all our bills are paid." Reference here was made to bills owed the utility companies for back services. These include a $3,500 water bill for the last half of 1941 and an old bill of approximately $7,000 that has accumulated in past years for fire hydrant rentals. Ebby is a councilman-at-large.

Ed Wallace, also a councilman-at-large, referred to the coming extension of day light during the Summer months, stating that Fall would be time enough to act on the issue.

Persons who favored turning on lights were Boyd Horn who stated that a budget was set up at the beginning of the year to balance the city's debts and take care of old bills and that any surplus now in the general fund should be used for the lighting expense; Ben Gordon, mayor, who cited the increased need of lights this Summer due to the fact that more persons will be at home due to government restrictions on traveling and also the need to combat a threat of any crime wave in the city.

Goeller for Lights President John Goeller, who brought the issue before the floor, also expressed his desire to see the street lights turned back on for the safety of local citizens who use sidewalks after dark.

After a long debate on the subject a vote was taken with the following results on the issue for immediate action on the relighting of city streets: in favor,

Home Nursing Classes Planned In Ashville

ASHVILLE

With the object of organizing a home nursing class, interested women of Madison, Walnut, Harrison township, including Ashville, will meet at the local school building Friday, May 22, at 3 p. m. This announcement is made by Mrs. Harold Bowers, chairman of the health committee of the local Defense Council.

If a sufficient number of women show interest in this home nursing course and attend this called meeting, arrangements will be worked out for class organization and fix time for the beginning of classes. Classes will be conducted each week with two in the afternoon and one in the evening or one in the afternoon and two in the evening, which ever best suits the ones composing the classes. Not more than twenty women may enter any one class. If enough enroll, three classes will be organized and will be taught by Mrs.

Crites, Horn and Helwag; opposed Ebby, Lynch, Mason and Wallace.

Financial report for the period ending May 20 was accepted with the following figures issued as balances in the various city funds: general, $12,978.04; library, $817.85; sewage disposal, $8,270.59; auto street repair, $7,040.43; gasoline tax, $5,576.36; and hospital, $6,818.86. The total balance is $35,302.16 with collections for the first half of May at Berger hospital stated as $929.70 and total collections to date on parking meters of $1,291.01. Unpaid bills include parking meter company, $968.25; delinquent fire hydrant rental, $6,912, and street lighting bill for December of 1942, $343.33 that was ordered paid.

Hospital Work Needed

Improvements at Berger hospital in conformity with state law were reported necessary by E. W. Weiler, safety director, who has stated that he is receiving tentative bids for work of redecorating the building inside and for changing of nursery facilities in an effort to give council an estimate of how much will have to be appropriated for the job. Councilmen also instructed City Solicitor J. W. Adkins to draw up a resolution amending old rates charged at hospital to make way for an increase in rates to be acted on in the near future.

Members were informed that a petition to abandon Pearl Alley had been dropped, therefore no action was taken. A committee to investigate a well at the hospital for use as a supply of water for North-end fires was granted more time to study the well and its capacity.

An ordinance providing for transfer of $1,406.66 from sewage, gasoline and auto tax funds to the general fund as payment of workmen's compensation for the last three years was given its second reading with action expected at the next meeting.

All members of council will meet in a committee investigation of increases in city employees' salaries next Tuesday evening, with Frank Lynch in charge of the conference.

William Fischer, Jr., and Mrs. Sam Cloud, both graduate, registered nurses.

The second first aid class now operating, and composed of some thirty members, is getting well along in class work and hopes to complete the course yet this month. A third class may be organized if a sufficient number is interested to take the instruction course.

Ashville

As a requirement of the post-office department, the local post-office force for the first thirteen days of the present month made a count and record of the mail handled on the two rural routes out from Ashville office and operated by Russell Perrill, Route One and George Messick, Route Two.

Number of pieces delivered from the office to Route patrons by Mr. Perrill: first class, 2962; second class, 3306; third class, 1406; fourth class, 196; total pieces delivered, 7872. Number of pieces collected on this route for the 13 days: first class, 1409; second class, 3; third class, 177; fourth class, 39. Total pieces collected, 1632. Money orders received, 52. The Weather Man put the kibosh stamp on the Circleville high school band concert and show for Wednesday evening with the scene of action at the park. But the same program has been arranged for Friday.

George Duval, one of the few "old timers" at the local Crites cannery, told us that this is "just glorious weather" for the growing pea crop and that it wouldn't be long now until there'd be plenty doing about the factory. George does the cooking at the hot tanks and when he gets through cooking the stuff it stays that way, he says.

Q.—What is thermit?
A.—It is a mixture of granular aluminum and iron oxide, which is the same as iron rust.

Q.—What happens when thermit ignites?
A.—The aluminum takes oxygen from the iron oxide, and burns at about 4,500 degrees Fahrenheit, forming aluminum oxide and metallic iron.

Q.—Can burning thermit be extinguished?
A.—No. The oxygen supply needed for burning is self-contained, and when the reaction is once started it goes on to completion.

Q.—How is the magnesium bomb fired?
A.—It ignites on impact. A pin in the igniting mechanism is driven into a small percussion cap which sets fire to the starting mixture. This starts the thermit reaction which, in turn, ignites the magnesium body of the bomb.

Q.—What is the normal course of events when an ignited bomb is allowed to burn undisturbed?
A.—While the thermit is burning, melted metal and flames are spurted about over a wide area for about a minute. Then the magnesium ignites and burns quietly, with a brilliant white light and white smoke, for from 10 to 20 minutes. The molten metal forms a pool on the floor and will run into cracks, setting fire to combustible materials.

Q.—Why will not water extinguish burning magnesium?
A.—Because burning magnesium extracts oxygen from the water, which actually is a fuel for this metal.

Q.—Will sand extinguish burning magnesium?
A.—No. It will cut down the heat radiated by the burning metal and reduce the rate of burning, but the bomb will continue to smolder under a blanket of sand.

Q.—What happens when water is thrown on a burning magnesium bomb, or a solid stream of water strikes it?
A.—An explosive reaction takes place, due to the sudden generation of steam. White hot metal may be scattered around a considerable area.

Q.—Is there a safe way of applying water on a burning magnesium bomb?
A.—Yes. If water is applied in the form of a spray, no explosive reaction will take place.

Q.—Is it desirable to apply water in the form of a spray on a burning magnesium bomb?
A.—Yes, for two reasons:

1. The water speeds up the combustion of the bomb, thereby causing it to burn out quickly.
2. The water wets down the immediate surroundings of the bomb, thus helping to control the fire it has started or even reducing the possibility of its starting a fire.

Q.—How can this spray be produced?
A.—By the use of a hose with an adjustable nozzle, or by "thumbing" the solid stream emitted by any type of fire extinguisher delivering water or chemicals in a water solution.

$100,000 BLAZE HITS HOSPITAL AT DAYTON HOME

DAYTON, May 21—Loss caused by fire which swept an abandoned but still fully-equipped 458-bed hospital at the National Military home at Dayton was estimated today at $100,000.

The structure was erected in 1868, about the time the Home was established for Civil War veterans. When more modern hospital buildings were erected in recent years, the hospital was turned into a barracks but it was abandoned for this purpose last September and used only for storage purposes.

Cause of the spectacular three-alarm blaze was not determined immediately. Maj. A. S. Miller, domiciliary officer, said other buildings on the grounds were not threatened by the fire.

Q.—What types of fire extinguishers deliver such a stream?
A.—The Soda-Acid, the Pump-Tank, the Foam, the loaded-stream, and the gas cartridge types.

Q.—What action may be expected from a bomb lodging in an attic?
A.—If unattended, it will start a fire in the attic and within a few minutes it will burn through to the ceiling below, or the molten magnesium will run through cracks in the floor and spread the fire to the room below.

Q.—What advance means of protection should be taken?
A.—All combustible material should be removed from the attic. This includes clothing, stacks of magazines, trunks, etc. Such material is not only a fire hazard, but it hinders fire-fighting.

Q.—Can attic floors be protected so that the bomb will not burn through them?
A.—Yes. Over-lapping layers of building paper can be spread on the floor and at least two inches of sand placed on the paper. Before this is done, make certain the structure will stand the additional weight. Raised above the sand, place wooden frames four to six inches deep, with chicken wire spread over them. The wire will break the force of the bomb's impact and prevent it from scattering the sand.

Q.—Why is it dangerous to approach a bomb immediately after it has fallen?
A.—Because of the scattering effect caused by the thermit reaction and because of the possibility that the bomb contains an explosive charge. Wait until the violent reaction is over before exposing yourself to the bomb.

Q.—How close can you approach the bomb after it has fallen?
A.—Within a few feet. The only physical danger is from splattering bits of molten magnesium, or from fire started by the bomb.

Q.—What should you do if a bomb falls in the street?
A.—If there is nothing nearby to which it can set fire, the bomb can be allowed to burn itself out harmlessly. It can be covered with sand to lessen the radiant heat.

Q.—What should you do if the bomb falls through the roof and lands in the attic or some other top floor room?
A.—Stay away from the bomb for the first minute or so. Then, if it has not burned through the floor, sand can be shoveled over it, the mass scooped up into a pail, and the pail removed from the premises. Before the bomb is placed in the pail, there should be a layer of several inches of sand in it, and more sand can be shoveled over the bomb after it has been dumped into the pail.

Q.—Suppose the bomb has fallen into the house and has started a fire?
A.—Use water, from either a garden hose or any water or water solution type of extinguisher available. First, use a solid stream on any fire caused by the bomb. Then use a spray directly on the bomb itself. As soon as the bomb has burned itself out, rip open the floor and clean up every bit of the fire with the solid stream from your equipment.

Q.—What is the major objection to depending on a garden hose for protection against fire bombs?
A.—Normal water supplies may fall under air attack when high-explosive bombs break water mains. Or firemen may deplete the supply in their efforts to control fire.

Q.—What is the major objection to depending on a garden hose for protection against fire bombs?
A.—Normal water supplies may fall under air attack when high-explosive bombs break water mains. Or firemen may deplete the supply in their efforts to control fire.

BANDITS BEING HUNTED THROUGH SOUTHERN OHIO

PORTSMOUTH, May 21—Sheriff Earl Brandel and deputies led a search in Adams and Highland counties today for two armed men who robbed J. A. Meade, 50, storekeeper at Pond Run, Scioto county of $47. Adams county sheriff, Grimes Morgan, was beaten up by the two bandits when he attempted to arrest them. The bandits' car bore Kentucky license plates.

With continued rainfall in the county this week, many farmers have been unable to complete their Spring corn planting and a large portion of the soy bean acreage has not been planted.

This rain, that has totaled more than half an inch in the last two days, is also preventing farmers from taking any action to stop the growth of weeds that are now ruling Spring planting, but the rain has been perfect for peas.

KISS AND KILL CASE NEAR END; SANITY ARGUED

CHICAGO, May 21—The murder trial of Clarence McDonald, the kiss and kill slayer of 17-year-old Dorothy Broz, was expected to reach the jury in criminal court tonight or tomorrow.

During yesterday's session, in which the defense rested its case, both sides presented alienists with contradictory testimony as to whether the youthful defendant was insane when he shot the girl in the balcony of a Chicago theatre February 24.

Testifying for the defense, Dr. Samuel Kraines, assistant state alienist, and Dr. Thomas Cusack of the King's Park hospital, Long Island, N. Y., judged that McDonald was insane at the time of the shooting.

State witnesses who declared categorically that McDonald was sane at the time included Dr. William H. Haines, head of the Cook county behavior clinic, and Dr. Harry R. Hoffman, state alienist and the superior of Dr. Kraines.

OTTERBEIN TEAM WILL APPEAR IN STOUTSVILLE

Sunday morning, May 24, a Student Deputation team, representing the Life Work Recruits of Otterbein college will conduct the morning service at the Stoutsville Evangelical church.

The group is comprised of young men and women who have committed themselves to a full-time religious service. Those going to Stoutsville from the organization are John Oleksa, Frank Robinson, president of the organization, George Bishop, Jerry Rone and Lloyd Savage.

Mr. Oleksa, who will preach and also lead the song service, is a ministerial student with a rather unusual background. Before being converted and later entering Otterbein as a freshman, he was proprietor of a honky-tonk dance hall near his home at Cherry Creek, N. Y.

Council Rejects Move To Turn On Street Lights By 4-3 Vote.

ALL MEMBERS STATE VIEWS ON QUESTION

Mayor Gordon In Favor Of Restoring Service, But Question Is Beaten

LYNCH WANTS SURPLUS

J. D. Mason Wants Children To Observe 8:30 Curfew; Others Speak

Main issue before Circleville council Wednesday evening was the possibility of turning the city's street lights on for the remainder of the year. After a lengthy discussion of the question, with both sides giving their views, a vote to have the electric company turn the lights back on was rejected four to three.

At their last meeting, councilmen transferred funds into the general fund to reimburse it for loans made to other funds in the past and due to this unexpected source of income the motion in regard to the lighting problem was brought up.

Frank Lynch, councilman-at-large, objected to the action by council on the issue at present, stating that it would interfere with solving the city's water rate difficulties. He pointed out that the council either had to buy the local plant or enter an agreement with company officials as to increased rates that would be absorbed by the consumers if any plan were worked out. It has also been proposed that the city might bring a two-mill levy for a period of from five to ten years to a vote of the people to defray water expenses.

Mr. Lynch also backed a standing that even though the council, if its 1942 budget works out as expected, might have a balance of $10,000 at the end of the year that 1943 will bring up new and possibly harder financial problems for council members to meet and suggested that the reserve be kept for insuring future needs.

"Finances Above Safety"

George Crites, of the third ward, stating that if funds were available that he favored re-lighting city streets, went on record as saying, "I don't think that we should put our little financial problems above the safety of our men, women and children."

J. D. Mason, First ward, offered his opinion that he wanted to see the council get its 'head out of water' before tackling the lighting question again. He also explained that he feared no serious reaction this Summer if the city's children abide by an 8:30 curfew.

Byron Eby's stand was given in the following statement, "I'm not in favor of turning anything on or off until all our bills are paid." Reference here was made to bills owed the utility companies for back services. These include a $3,500 water bill for the last half of 1941 and an old bill of approximately $7,000 that has accumulated in past years for fire hydrant rentals. Eby is a councilman-at-large.

Ed Wallace, also a councilman-at-large, referred to the coming extension of day light during the Summer months, stating that Fall would be time enough to act on the issue.

Persons who favored turning on lights were Boyd Horn who stated that a budget was set up at the beginning of the year to balance the city's debts and take care of old bills and that any surplus now in the general fund should be used for the lighting expense; Ben Gordon, mayor, who cited the increased need of lights this Summer due to the fact that more persons will be at home due to government restrictions on traveling and also the need to combat a threat of any crime wave in the city.

Goeller for Lights

President John Goeller, who brought the issue before the floor, also expressed his desire to see the street lights turned back on for the safety of local citizens who use sidewalks after dark.

After a long debate on the subject a vote was taken with the following results on the issue for immediate action on the re-lighting of city streets: in favor,

Home Nursing Classes Planned In Ashville

ASHVILLE

With the object of organizing a home nursing class, interested women of Madison, Walnut, Harrison township, including Ashville, will meet at the local school building Friday, May 22, at 3 p. m. This announcement is made by Mrs. Harold Bowers, chairman of the health committee of the local Defense Council.

If a sufficient number of women show interest in this home nursing course and attend this called meeting, arrangements will be worked out for class organization and fix time for the beginning of classes. Classes will be conducted each week with two in the afternoon and one in the evening or one in the afternoon and two in the evening, which ever best suits the ones composing the classes. Not more than twenty women may enter any one class. If enough enroll, three classes will be organized and will be taught by Mrs.

Crites, Horn and Helwage; opposed Eby, Lynch, Mason and Wallace.

Financial report for the period ending May 20 was accepted with the following figures issued as balances in the various city funds: general, $12,978.04; library, $817.88; sewage disposal, $8,270.59; auto street repair, $7,040.43; gasoline tax, $5,576.36; and hospital, $6,818.86. The total balance is $35,302.16 with collections for the first half of May at Berger hospital stated as $929.70 and total collections to date on parking meters of $1,291.01. Unpaid bills include parking meter company, $968.25; delinquent fire hydrant rental, $6,912, and street lighting bill for December of 1942, $343.33 that was ordered paid.

Hospital Work Needed

Improvements at Berger hospital in conformity with state law were reported necessary by E. W. Weiler, safety director, who has stated that he is receiving tentative bids for work of redecorating the building inside and for changing of nursery facilities in an effort to give council an estimate of how much will have to be appropriated for the job. Councilmen also instructed City Solicitor J. W. Adkins to draw up a resolution amending old rates charged at hospital to make way for an increase in rates to be acted on in the near future.

Members were informed that a petition to abandon Pearl Alley had been dropped, therefore no action was taken. A committee to investigate a well at the hospital for use as a supply of water for North-end fires was granted more time to study the well and its capacity.

An ordinance providing for transfer of $1,406.66 from sewage, gasoline and auto tax funds to the general fund as payment of workmen's compensation for the last three years was given its second reading with action expected at the next meeting.

All members of council will meet in a committee investigation of increases in city employees' salaries next Tuesday evening, with Frank Lynch in charge of the conference.

William Fischer, Jr., and Mrs. Sam Cloud, both graduate, registered nurses.

The second first aid class now operating, and composed of some thirty members, is getting well along in class work and hopes to complete the course yet this month. A third class may be organized if a sufficient number is interested to take the instruction course.

Ashville—As a requirement of the post-office department, the local post-office force for the first thirteen days of the present month made a count and record of the mail handled on the two rural routes out from Ashville office and operated by Russell Perrill, Route One and George Messick, Route Two. Number of pieces collected on this route for the 13 days: first class, 1409; second class, 3; third class, 177; fourth class, 39. Total pieces collected, 1632. Money orders received, 52. Numbers of pieces delivered from the office to Route patrons by Mr. Messick: first class, 3436; second class, 3638; third class, 1988; fourth class, 169. Total pieces delivered, 9252. Collected by Mr. Messick: first class, 1563; second class, 1; third class, 200; fourth class, 17. Total pieces collected, 1781. Money orders received, 30.

Ashville—The Weather Man put the kibosh stamp on the Circleville high school band concert and show for Wednesday evening with the scene of action at the park. But the same program has been arranged for Friday.

Ashville—George Duvall, one of the few "old timers" at the local Crites cannery, told us that this is "just glorious weather" for the growing pea crop and that it wouldn't be long now until there'd be plenty doing about the factory. George does the cooking at the hot tanks and when he gets through cooking the stuff it stays that way, he says.

Questions and Answers on Fighting Fire Bombs

Q.—What is the purpose of the small fire bomb in air attacks?
A.—To start countless small, widely dispersed fires, so as to spread fire beyond the control of the fire department and destroy civilian morale.

Q.—If a bombing plane drops a load of 2,000 fire bombs on a city, how many fires will be started on the average?
A.—An average of 150 may be expected.

Q.—What are the principal parts of a small fire bomb?
A.—A thick-walled tube of magnesium alloy containing thermit and a starting mixture, an igniter head, and a tail fin to steady the bomb in its flight.

Q.—What are the dimensions and weight of a small fire bomb?
A.—It is 14 inches long, 2 inches in diameter, and weighs 2.2 lbs.
